Soutenu par

This major event, devoted to engraving, lithography, screen printing and digital processes, is an ideal opportunity to celebrate printmaking in all its forms.

The Fête de l'estampe : created in 2013 by Manifestampe-Fédération nationale de l'estampe, allows the public to discover this art in all its richness.

Why Mai 26 : this is the commemoration day of the Edict of Saint-Jean de Luz dated May 26, 1660, which recognized engraving as a free art.

The Fête de l'estampe around May 26 is an opportunity for artists, art galleries, museums, institutions, art schools to open their doors to the public.

Art lovers, collectors, curious, students, schoolchildren are invited to discover the world of printmaking, to gather around contemporary or heritage works in the intimacy of a workshop or in the rooms of a large museum ...

At the beginning of this 12th edition, we hope for a large number of events programmed in well-known art centers to the most unexpected places, in all regions of France, in Europe, and beyond. Let us hope that the Fête de l'estampe will still cross the national framework, and record for its 12th edition, several events for the general public abroad.

Sunday, May 26, 2024 is the culmination of this festive event that is often spread over several days depending on the initiatives.

Note that many events are open to the public over a much wider period than Sunday, May 26, 2024. Some events take place over several days, or even one or two weeks, around this date.

Our rules provide for free access to events to the public for at least one day between May 15 and 31. Nevertheless, the day of Sunday, May 26, 2024 remains the flagship day of our great celebration.
